

RACE in the Atlantic WORLD 1700–1900

Edited by Richard S. Newman, Patrick Rael, and Manisha Sinha

Emphasizing comparative and transnational approaches, Race in the Atlantic World, 1700–1900 focuses on the development of, and challenges to, racialized inequality in Atlantic culture, with a particular focus on the Americas. Books in the series explore the evolving meanings of race, slavery, and nation; African identity formation across the Atlantic world; and struggles over emancipation and its aftermath.

Richard S. Newman is a professor of history at Rochester Institute of Technology and the author of Freedom's Prophet: Bishop Richard Allen, the AME Church, and the Black Founding Fathers. Patrick Rael is an associate professor of history at Bowdoin College and the author of Black Identity and Black Protest in the Antebellum North. Manisha Sinha is an associate professor of African American studies at the University of Massachusetts, Amherst. She is author of The Counterrevolution of Slavery and coeditor of African American Mosaic: A Documentary History from the Slave Trade to the Twenty-first Century.
