Responding to Student Writing: A Student Panel

Wednesday, October 9  4:25-5:25 PM
Location: 107 Kanbar Hall

RSVP: Tammis Donovan  tdonovan@bowdoin.edu

Do you ever worry if the comments that you make on your student's papers are useful? Do you wish that you could better understand what students need to hear from you? What shuts students down and what inspires them to revise? Join Meredith McCarroll (Director of Writing and Rhetoric) and a panel of Bowdoin students to hear about the most effective ways to offer feedback on your students' writing.

Creating Meaningful Oral Presentations in Your Classes

Friday, October 18  10:00-11:00 AM
Location: 109 Kanbar Hall

RSVP: Tammis Donovan  tdonovan@bowdoin.edu

Seminars and writing classes can be ideal spaces for student presentations, but many faculty feel anxious about designing assignments, offering feedback, and assessing presentations. Drawing from recent scholarship on equitable learning in a speaking classroom, we will discuss ways to make good use of class time and create dynamic and measurable assignments for oral presentations.

FMI contact Meredith McCarroll, Director of Writing and Rhetoric, Baldwin Center for Learning and Teaching, at mmcarro@bowdoin.edu or x5056