While many of us are eager to return to the in-person learning system, online learning is here for now (temporarily of course) and we must try to make the best of it and take advantage of the opportunities it provides. Online learning certainly poses challenges to students, but with tips & strategies shared and discussed in this group, we can face and possibly overcome those difficulties. We will be creating habits that can reduce our stress, increase our learning and contribute to a fulfilling semester.
