Office: Dudley Coe 304
Office Hours: Tuesday 8:30-11:30am

Course Description: Although modern humans tend to think of themselves as above nature, they are in fact part of it: partners in a myriad of relationships that have tied them to other members of the animal kingdom throughout their history. This course examines a number of these relationships, focusing on North America from the sixteenth through the twentieth century. Topics considered include the role of animals in the development of the American economy, how domestic and wild animals have shaped the American environment, how Americans have conceived of the boundary between humanity and animality, and how pets have come to be viewed as part of the modern family.
Assignments:

Primary Source Analysis – TWO-page essay (double-spaced, 1” margins, 12 pt. Times New Roman font) analyzing a theme or themes contained in the Bison Documents (see Sept 24).

Two Discussion Leader Reports – Each student will be responsible for leading two class discussions, one session from Phase I and one from Phase II. On each occasion the student will submit a ≈5-page analysis paper on the day’s readings. This paper should identify the thesis of the assigned readings, outline the arguments and evidence used to prove that thesis, explain how the readings relate analytically to one another and to previous readings, and analyze the treatment that the readings received during discussion. Discussion leadership will usually be performed in pairs, but each leader is responsible for independently producing an analysis paper. Papers will be due on Blackboard by 12:00pm three days after the discussion.

Discussion Participation – Regular participation in class discussions is central to a seminar of this nature. While not every student will necessarily be required to speak during every class period, students will be graded on whether they make regular and substantive contributions to discussion over the course of the semester.

Research Proposal - ≈2-page proposal for an independent research paper. Should identify the historical question to be pursued, as well as some potential sources. These final papers should focus on some aspect of animals as physical actors or as mental constructs (or both) in American history.

Final Research Paper – ≈10-page research paper on a topic chosen in consultation with the Professor

Grading:

- Primary Source Analysis worth 15%;
- Two Discussion Leader Reports each worth 15%;
- Research Proposal worth 5%;
- Final Research Paper worth 30%;
- Discussion Participation worth 20%

Attendance:

You will not receive any credit directly for attendance, but unexcused absences will likely impact your final participation grade. Moreover, for every three unexcused absences your final course grade will be penalized by one full letter grade, the above grading rubric notwithstanding.

Required Texts:

2. All other readings will be available online through Blackboard or E-Reserve

WARNINGS AND DISCLAIMERS

SYLLABUS: This Syllabus is a living document and will likely evolve over the course of the semester. You can always find the most recent assignments on Blackboard under the “Readings” tab.

BLACKBOARD: Blackboard will be an integral part of this course. The syllabus, descriptions of assignments, useful guides, and any changes hereafter will be posted there. You are required to check Blackboard regularly and will be responsible for all material on the course site.

FILMS: Film screenings are intended for class purposes only and, in accordance with copyright law, are not open to the public.

CITATION OF SOURCES: When referring to sources (primary and secondary) in your papers, you should provide a complete citation including author, title, publisher, place and date of publication, and page numbers. Citations should follow the “Chicago-style” format commonly used by historians. I ask that you use footnotes with all of your paper assignments. The library website has citation information under “Get Started,” and I have included several links on Blackboard. Please see me if you have any questions.

ACADEMIC HONESTY: All students must read and abide by the Academic Honor and Social Code (http://www.bowdoin.edu/studentaffairs/student-handbook/college-policies/index.shtml). Suspected cases of plagiarism will result in a conference with me, and, if unresolved at that point, will be referred to the Judicial Board. If you are unsure what constitutes plagiarism, please consult a reference librarian or ask me.
