COLONIAL AMERICA AND THE ATLANTIC WORLD, 1607-1763

This course offers a chronological survey of the social history of the founding and growth of the colonies in British North America. We will explore the difficulties that European and African emigrants faced in creating new societies, economies, and politics in an unfamiliar and already inhabited environment, the impact of cultural contact on Native Americans, and the effects of diverse and often conflicting cultural goals and expectations on the early settlement and development of the colonies. We will also examine the gradual adaptations and changes in European, Native American, and African cultures, and their separate, combined, and often contested contributions to a new “provincial,” increasingly stratified (socially, economically, and politically), and regionally disparate culture. We will conclude by exploring later problems of maturity and stability as the thirteen colonies began to outgrow the British imperial system and become a new “American” society.

Course requirements: The course consists of two class meetings each week. The readings assigned for each class should be completed by that class meeting. (The “further readings” listed in the Reading Guide are not required.) You are expected to attend class and to come to all class meetings and discussion sections prepared to discuss and analyze the readings [20% of final grade]. The History 2121 (231) Reading Guide on Blackboard provides questions to help focus your reading for the class discussions. All reading assignments are available either through e-reserve (use the Library Reserves link on Blackboard or the e-reserves link on the Reading Guide), or by link to a database (JSTOR) or an online source from the Reading Guide (RG). If you miss a discussion section meeting (noted on the syllabus), you are expected to write a thoughtful evaluation (2-3 pages) of the assigned book. You are strongly encouraged to print the assigned articles and to purchase the assigned books from the bookstore; one copy of each book is on reserve in the library.

The essay assignments are an integral part of the course. Two critical analyses of primary documents (5 pages each) will be due during the semester [together, 40% of final grade]. A final take-home essay (10-12 pages) is due by the scheduled final-exam date for the course [40% of final grade]. The Extension, Deadline, and Grading Policy for the course can be found on the course home page.
